Empowering Minds - Nurturing Hearts - Journeying in Faith and Purpose

Thought of the Week

Have you ever felt sorry for something you did? Well, Peter, one of Jesus' closest friends, felt just like that. After Jesus was crucified, Peter was heartbroken. He even denied knowing Jesus three times! Can you imagine how bad he must have felt for that?

This week we have thought about this and what happened next. Peter and some other friends went back to their old job - fishing. They were out on the lake, feeling sad and lost, when suddenly, they saw someone on the shore. It was Jesus! He had cooked breakfast for them on the beach.

Now, Peter was probably feeling even worse when he saw Jesus. But Jesus didn't scold him or make him feel bad. Instead, Jesus asked Peter a question: "Do you love me?" He asked it not just once, but three times. And each time, Peter said yes.

By asking Peter three times if he loved him, Jesus was giving Peter a chance to show how sorry he was for denying him. And each time Peter said yes, Jesus forgave him and reminded him to take care of his friends.

Isn't that amazing? Even when we mess up, Jesus forgives us and gives us another chance. Peter felt forgiven and changed after meeting Jesus on the beach. It's like a fresh start for him.

So, whenever we make mistakes, let's remember Peter's story. Let's remember that Jesus forgives us and loves us no matter what. And let's try our best to show love to others, just like Peter did.
